Creating Clarity in Incentive Strategy in an Uncertain Business Environment

Brett A. Herand
MANAGING DIRECTOR

As companies navigate the lingering effects of the COVID pandemic and other macroeconomic shocks (inflation, talent shortages, supply chain disruptions, and the Russia/Ukraine conflict), tactical compensation decision-making and incentive strategy continues to present significant challenges to management teams and compensation committees.

This webinar provides a summary of best practices related to short- and long-term incentive plan design in a volatile environment, along with important considerations related to stockholder engagement, public disclosure, and governance best practices. We provide a preview of the trends beginning to emerge ahead of the 2023 pay cycle that can help compensation committee members prepare for the next round of pay-setting discussions.
